[1] Oxford 20 June 1837.

My Dear Sir.

Not long ago you sent me a Dane - allow me to requite you with a Swede. I am much obliged to you for your introduction of M<sup>r</sup> Hammerich whom I have found a very lively and intelligent young man and a very respectable Sanscrit scholar. The bearer of this Dr Thülberg is also a student of Sanscrit - and a cultivator of other oriental languages. He is a member of the University of Upsala and being on his way back to his own country is desirous of paying his respects to you - I hope you will find him as I have found him a very estimable person and one who merits your notice. I wish his journey had been [2] a little longer delayed as then he might have propitiated you with an upac?ra - in the shape of the Sánkhyā Karikā in a new garb. It is nearly finished but requires for completion a few weeks more when I hope to find means of conveying a copy to you and my predecessor in the work, Professor Lassen. D<sup>r</sup> Thulberg has had an opportunity of seeing how we proceed in Sanscrit in this country. I am afraid he will have to make a very unfavourable comparison of Oxford with Bonn. But all Literature is at a low Ebb in [3] England. Politics absorb all graver thoughts and works of fancy engage lighter hours - Perhaps part of the fault lies with our men of letters who have no Schlegels in their number.

Believe me

Yours very truly

HHWilson.
